

Developing Yourself as a Manager

A highly participative workshop giving you development and 1 to 1 feedback on your management style and approach, focused on 3 essential management competencies: prioritisation, team working and communication skills.

Workshop Outline

A motivating and fun approach underpins this highly interactive 3 day workshop, giving you the chance to practice, learn, review and assess your strengths and development needs as a manager; in a friendly and supportive environment.

Designed around participating in pragmatic and realistic management activities, the workshop enables accelerated reflection of own management style through networking and discussion with peer group and observed one-to-one feedback from workshop facilitators.

What will you learn by attending?

- How to reflect and assess own management style and approach in relation to the set organisational competencies
- How to get the most from those you manage in a team or project environment
- The essence of positive team working, communication style, and prioritisation
- Observer's view of your strengths and development needs, assessed against the above 3 competencies

Our unique learning approach provides individual delegates with:

Day 1

Learning

on key management competencies including prioritisation, team working and communication skills

Day 2

Observed Practice

of the competencies learnt in safe environment to uncover individual potential and areas of development

Day 3

Individual Feedback

that is specific to every delegate's performance in relation to their contribution and managerial competencies presented

Duration:

3 Days

Who is it for?

This programme is ideal for employees who wish to develop their potential as a team leader or manager.

This workshop is delivered in partnership between People & Design and Smarter Learning

